THE WRITERS.

Asked a few years ago what was her life motto, Mrs. Craigie replied, "Work while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work."

J. M. Barrie is one of the most painstaking dramatists of the day. So hard is he to please that he rewrites an act eight or nine times.

Mary McLane, "the genius from Butte, Mont.," is working upon a new book which she herself declares may never be published because of its radical departure from the conventional. She says it is "a true story of her thoughts and emotions." Emerson Hough, the author, is a great traveler, never contented to remain in one place very long. He was in the winter, and some eleven years ago he spent most of the cold season roughing it in the National park and photographing buffatoes.

Smith's Specific Uric-O For Rheumatism Only

Internal Blood Treatment and Rheumatic Acid Dissolvent.

All sufferers from Rheumatism will hall with ight the new discovery Uric-O. It is made from Nature's herbs and does not contain a single grain of mineral poison. It's action is to neutralize and drive from the system the Uric and Rhenmatic soids that cause the trouble. It makes no difference where the pain is located, whether in the muscles, joints or kidneys, Uric-O will search it out and effectually stop it.

Urio-O does not cure every ill to which flesh is helv. It is designed to and does cure Rhenmatism and rheumatism only. It does not con tain a drop of alconol or other stimulating polson and is not a catharrie.

The Red Cross Pharmacy is the home of Uric-O in Barre and you can purchase it of them for 75c and $1.00 a bottle or if you want to test it first, write to the makers, the Smith Drug Co, Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a sam-

The Fool Killer

[Original.] Mrs. Cleaver had an object, 'Her daughter Carrie had inherited a fortune from her father and another from her aunt; nevertheless Mrs. Cleaver's supreme object was to marry her daughter to a rich man.

Mr. Algernon Bedell was composed of two parts, man and money. There was very little to the man, but a great deal to the money, which his father had made for him out of bones. The only notable thing Mr. Bedell had ever done was to give a dinner to a dozen persons costing $1,000 a cover. He was looking 1. P. She supplied him with a method for galning a new distinction.

"Mamma," said Miss Cleaver one day after her mother had taken ten pounds tic science night at the home of Mrs. of flesh off the girl in her efforts to inconsent on one condition. I must be abducted."

"Abducted," exclaimed the mother.

"Yes. I am of a romantic disposition, and Mr. Bedell has aspirations for dis-I cinquartenari della Colonia Italiana tinction. An elopement would set all sono invitati ave una riunione speciale the world agog." "Caroline," said Mrs. Cleaver, amazed, "have you taken leave of your senses?" And she swept out of the But Mr. Bedell, though he feared the absence of motive would render the plan unsuitable to his purpose, still had a mind for it, and so told Mrs. Cleaver. That lady, being absorbed in the main object, the marriage, finally consented to allow the pair "to make fools of themselves if they liked." All things must end, even engagement periods, and the day finally arrived, or, rather, the night, when Misa Cleaver was to be abducted. She was to sleep in a wing of the house, where her mother would not be likely to become aware of her flight. Miss Cleaver insisted on carrying out all the details the same as in a real elopement. Mr. Bedell was to bring a ladder and a carriage, and the fugitive was to take only a hand bag. An address was to be left on Miss Bedell's pincushion to which the trunks were to be sent the

Soon after dark on the evening of the elopement a wagon drove up to the Cleaver residence, a man carried a ladder into the back yard, and the wagon was driven away empty. Mrs. Cleaver looked out of the window, saw the proceeding and wondered why her daughter preferred to see a ladder carried Into the back yard to numerous costly presents carried in at the front door. "Carrie," she called, "the ladder has come. If the fool killer should happen by he might feel disposed to put it up to your window and carry you off himself." "Would be take Algy, too?" drawled

Miss Cleaver. "Mr. Bedell only consents to this folly to humor you.'

"Well, mother dear, if the fool killer It would be so remantic to have them fight for me." "Romance, romance, nothing but ro mance. I call it idlocy."

Eleven o'clock was fixed for the elopement, and as the cathedral clock in the neighborhood struck that hour Mr. Bedell drove up to a corner opposite the Cleaver mansion, alighted and walked across to the Cleaver back yard. He was surprised to see the ladder standing up against the brick wall and Miss Cleaver's window open. Another thing he saw, but it did not im press him at the time-a carriage driv ng away from a point near the gate, However, resolved to carry out the programme, he mounted the ladder to the open window and was about to look in before entering when he heard a policeman's club strike the curb opposite, so he tumbled in at once. The room was pitch dark. He called, but there was no answer. He heard some one coming up the ladder and, looking out, saw the street lamp shining on brass. A policeman was mounting. At the same time there was a loud hammering on the front door. The next thing that happened was Mrs. Cleaver coming into her daughter's room in her nightdress, though this was simultane-by the window. Mr. Bedell made a dive under the bed. "We've got him, ma'am," said the policeman. "He's here. Lock the door." Mr. Bedell was dragged from under the bed and stood looking at his intended mother-in-law and the guardian of the city, who had stepped to the dresser, brought his lantern to bear on a button and turned on the light. "What's this?" he said, picking up a bit of paper fastened to a pincushion. Mrs. Cleaver snatched it from bim, ran her eye over it and held it, crushed, in her clinched fist. Meanwhile there was a renewed hammering at the door. "Go downstairs," she said to Mr. Bedell, "and tell whoever is at the door to go away. Glad to escape the contemptuous look she gave him, he departed at once. Mrs. Cleaver explained to the policeman that there had been a mistake, slipped a bill into his hand, and he went downstairs to call off his comrades. When they had departed Mrs. Cleaver stood with Mr. Bedell in the drawing room, he in traveling suit, she still in her nightdress. She handed him the slip of paper found on the dresser. He smoothed it out and read: The fool killer came first and carried me off. Send trunks to Mrs. Theodore Wickwire, U. S. Army Hotel, St. A., P. Q. CARRIE.
